Confession of a Buddhist Atheist. Confession of a Buddhist Atheist is a personal account of the author's thirty-eight year engagement with Buddhism. The first part of the book (Monk) follows the author's journey from his departure from England at the age of 18, his first meeting with the Dalai Lama in 1972, his six years training as a Tibetan Buddhist monk, his disillusion with the Tibetan tradition and departure for a three year Zen training as a monk in South Korea.

Buddhist Atheist - Stephen Batchelor

This approach is in contrast to the aggressive atheism that periodically erupts in the modern West....Gotama was not a theist but nor was he an anti-theist. "God" is simply not part of his vocabulary. He was an "atheist" in the literal sense of the term. 'Confession of a Buddhist Atheist' p. 179. This passage helps to lay out some of the central values in Batchelor's 'Confession of a Buddhist Atheist'.
